JESUS IS ACQUAINTED WITH OUR GRIEF

Jesus had been earnestly conversing with and instructing his disciples; but as he neared Gethsemane he became strangely silent. His disciples were perplexed, and anxiously regarded his countenance, hoping there to read an explanation of the change that had come over their Master. They had frequently seen him depressed, but never before so utterly sad and silent. As he proceeded, this strange sadness increased; yet they dared not question him as to the cause. His form swayed as if he was about to fall, His disciples looked anxiously for his usual place of retirement, that their Master might rest. VOL. 3 SPIRIT OF PROPHECY 94.2

Photos: How social media affects the teenage brain

Researchers at UCLA's Brain Mapping Center found that when teenagers' photos get lots of "likes" on social media apps, such as Instagram, their brains respond in a similar way to seeing loved ones or winning money.

Reward circuitry

In a recent study, researchers at the UCLA brain mapping center used an fMRI scanner to image the brains of 32 teenagers as they used a bespoke social media app resembling Instagram. By watching the activity inside different regions of the brain as the teens used the app, the team found certain regions became activated by "likes", with the brain's reward center becoming especially active.

Peer influence

As part of the experiment, participants were also shown a range of "neutral" photos showing things like food and friends, and "risky" photos depicting cigarettes and alcohol. But the type of image had no impact on the number of "likes" given by the teens. they were instead more likely to 'like' the more popular photos, regardless of what they showed. This could lead to both a positive and negative influence from peers online.

How many true friends do you have on Facebook? The answer will surprise you

Published January 29, 2016 . The Kim Komando Show

Just how strong are your relationships with your friends on Facebook? Are they your best friends? Are they casual acquaintances? Are they family

Around 14 would at least express sympathy.

150. But, out of those 150, only 28, on average, we recognized as genuine friends.

But when participants were asked how many of those friends would help out in a time of need, emotional distress or other crisis, the average answer was 4. Around 14 would at least express sympathy.

So, despite your popularity on Facebook, not as many of your Facebook friends. translate into real friends that you can count on. Dunbar, however, offered this advice for people looking to keep their real-life and genuine friends:

'Friendships, in particular, have a natural decay rate in the absence of contact, and social media may well function to slow down the rate of decay. However, that alone may not be sufficient to prevent friendships eventually dying naturally if they are not occasionally reinforced by face-to-face interaction."

Why Steve Jobs and Bill Gates Both Severely Limited Their Kids' Tech Use

Technology has made Bill Gates the richest man in the world. You'd think he'd want to teach his three children to benefit from technology just as he has. Instead, the Microsoft founder seems more concerned about keeping tech from harming his kids.

In an interview with the UK Mirror earlier this year, Gates explained that he and his wife Melinda strictly limited their kids' tech exposure, banning them from owning a cell phone before they turn 14 or whipping out their devices at dinner time.

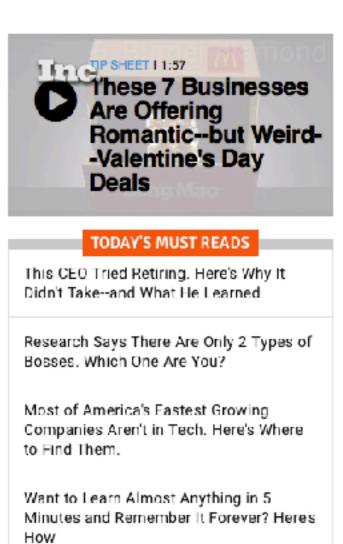

"We often set a time after which there is no screen time and in their case that helps them get to sleep at a reasonable hour," he told the paper. "You're always looking at how it can be used in a great way - homework and staying in touch with friends - and also where it has gotten to excess."

Steve Jobs kept tech to a minimum too.

Things were similar at the Jobs house, according to the New York Times' Nick Biton. When the Apple founder called Bilton to complain about a story shortly after the iPad's launch, Bilton asked how his kids were enjoying the wildly popular new product.

"They haven't used it," Jobs responded. "We limit how much technology our kids use at home." The conversation prompted Bilton to dig into the restrictions other tech titans institute at home with their kids. He found a stunning level of strictness was common across many of the best known names in tech.

Problem

In the work of many ministers there is too much sermonizing and too little real heart-to-heart work. There is need of more personal labor for souls. In Christlike sympathy the minister should come close to men individually, and seek to awaken their interest in the great things of eternal life. Their hearts may be as hard as the beaten highway, and apparently it may be a useless effort to present the Saviour to them; but while logic may fail to move, and argument be powerless to convince, the love of Christ, revealed in personal ministry, may soften the stony heart, so that the seed of truth can take root.

n a rare moment the other day I found myself watching some television during the day for an hour and it was excruciatingly painful. It felt like every channel was going to commercial at the same time and what I was watching was more about passing the time. than delving deep into a single show. I actually found myself getting angry at being forced to sit through more than 5 seconds of ads and changed the channel constantly to avoid them. 15 See then that you walk circumspectly, not as fools but as wise, 16 redeeming the time, because the days are evil. 17 Therefore do not be unwise, but understand what the will of the Lord is.

Ephesians 5:15-17

Success or failure in ministry depends much on one's use of time – Some might now have been thorough workmen had they made a good use of their time, feeling that they would have to give an account to God for their misspent moments. They have displeased God because they have not been industrious. Self-gratification, selflove, and selfish love of ease have kept some from good, withheld them from obtaining a knowledge of the Scriptures that they might be thoroughly furnished unto all good works. Some do not appreciate the value of time and have idled away in bed the hours that might have been employed in the study of the Bible. -Testimonies for the Church Vol 2 p.499

Titus 1:16

They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him

None but God can subdue the pride of man's heart. We cannot save ourselves. We cannot regenerate ourselves. In the heavenly courts there will be no song sung, To me that loved myself, and washed myself, redeemed myself, unto me be glory and honor, blessing and praise. But this is the keynote of the song that is sung by many here in this world. They do not know what it means to be meek and lowly in heart; and they do not mean to know this, if they can avoid it. The whole gospel is comprised in learning of Christ, His meekness and lowliness. {TM 456.2}

TALK LESS OF SELF

Let your heart be softened and melted under the divine influence of the Spirit of God. You should not talk so much about yourself, for this will strengthen no one. You should not make yourself a center and image that you must be constantly caring for yourself and leading others to care for you. Get your mind off from yourself into a more healthy channel. Talk of Jesus, and let self go; let it be submerged in Christ, and let this be the language of your heart: "I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me" Galations 2:20

Testimonies for the church 2, pg 320

The great outpouring of the Spirit of God, which lightens the whole earth with His glory, will not come until we have an enlightened people, that know by experience what it means to be laborers together with God. When we have entire, wholehearted consecration to the service of Christ, God will recognize the fact by an outpouring of His Spirit without measure; but this will not be while the largest portion of the church are not laborers together with God. God cannot pour out His Spirit when selfishness and self-indulgence are so manifest; when a spirit prevails that, if put into words, would express that answer of Cain, — "Am I my brother's keeper?" -The Review and Herald, July 21, 1896.

The Right Message

Righteousness by Faith

BE REMADE NEW

- TITUS 3:5-7
- NOT by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to His mercy He saved us, through the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit, whom He poured out on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior, ⁷ that having been justified by His grace we should become heirs according to the hope of eternal life.
