A close-up photograph of two ripe, red apples hanging from a branch. The apples are the central focus, with a soft, blurred background of more apples and green foliage. The lighting is natural, highlighting the texture of the apple skins.

Persimmon

Diospyros virginiana

Description

A small to medium tree whose fruit is valuable to people and wildlife. Among the hardest of North American woods. The male and female flowers are borne on separate plants so several trees should be planted near each other. Height at maturity is 60–70 ft.

Uses

This species can be commonly used for windbreaks, erosion control, reforestation and wetlands restoration. Wildlife benefits are food and cover. Get more information about Persimmon
